Tutoring Experience

I began tutoring Economics shortly after completing my undergraduate degree at McGill University. Initially, I worked with high school students preparing for IB and AP exams, helping them master core topics like supply and demand, market efficiency, and fiscal policy. My early experience sparked a passion for teaching, which I've cultivated ever since.

After completing my MSc at the University of Toronto, I expanded my tutoring practice to include undergraduate students, guiding them through advanced concepts like game theory and international trade. Over the years, I've helped numerous students successfully navigate challenging coursework and gain admission to prestigious universities.

In addition to private tutoring, I've collaborated with educational institutions in Canada and abroad, creating tailored lesson plans for diverse curricula such as A-Level and IGCSE. My extensive experience ensures students build a strong foundation in Economics, equipping them for academic and professional success.
